Your order is selected from young, vigorous stock 2 to 5 inches high at bud or blooming stage. All plants are grown and shipped from our greenhouses in 2¼-inch plastic pots.

GENERAL CULTURE

Plants are usually received in 2¼-inch plastic pots and should remain in them until they have become adjusted to your home atmosphere. Plants bloom best when they are pot-bound.

Always use sterilized, properly blended soil for re-potting. Our certified soil, which we ship to customers, is the same that we use for our tremendous growing stock of over 200,000 plants. Do not contaminate fresh, well-protected stock by using soil not suitably blended and sterilized.

A normal house temperature of 65° to 70° is most suitable. If your home is very hot and dry, we suggest that you grow Violets on pebble-filled trays, where you can create more moisture by keeping the pebbles moist at all times and by watering the plants individually at the top of the pot as needed or coarse Vermiculite can also be used in this manner.

North and west windows are best during the hot summer months, where plenty of light enters but not strong sunlight. South and east exposures give best results in winter.

Water plants when the soil feels only slightly moist to the touch. Do not allow plants to become thoroughly dry before watering them. On the other hand, do not allow them to become waterlogged, for this encourages crown rot, especially during the hot summer months. Use warm water, preferably rain water, distilled water or any that is free of chemicals. Frequency of watering depends upon size of pot, room, temperature, humidity and exposure. Plants can be watered from top or bottom.

Occasionally give plants a drink from the top, between stems, to keep the salts in the soil from accumulating at the top of the pot and forming a crust.

Make a practice of using an insecticide at least once a month as a preventive. No leaf-spotting will occur if foliage is allowed to dry thoroughly before plants are placed in sun or light. You may find evening the most convenient time to spray; in normal house temperatures leaves of plants will be dry before morning.

Violets received from our greenhouses have been grown here under careful conditions to combat diseases. We are state and federal certified, and we keep in effect a constant fumigation program. Plants are also treated with VC 13 as an extra precaution.

The pests that most often bother the home grower are mite and mealy-bugs. Both of these can be remedied in the early stages with the use of Optox Spray (20 drops to a pint of warm water), Antrol Bomb or Sel-Kaps. If plants become too badly infested, it is best to discard them for the protection of other plants that are healthy. Springtails, which are a fine, thread-like pest, can be controlled by using any preventive previously mentioned. Nematodes are small round worm-like animals that enter plants through roots, cause a swelling of the roots, stems or leaves and eventually result in an injury known as root knot. The best means of controlling them is by using sterilized soil to prevent contamination or the new VC 13 now available. Plants badly infested should be discarded.

When buds fall off or do not last long enough to develop, there may be a number of reasons: too dry an atmosphere or lack of humidity; the effect of gas fumes; not enough sunlight and good air circulation; overwatering; extreme changes of temperature and drafts; or leaving recently watered plants near a cold window overnight.

Stem rot is caused by fungi that enter the tissues of the plants and cause damage and death to cells. The only remedy for this type of rot is to use sterilized soil. And be careful not to overwater; waterlogged soil is the main reason for the attack by the fungi.

Plants should be fed at least twice every month if Violets are expected to perform at their best. A liquid food is perhaps the easiest to use. Liqua Vita is excellent. If you prefer a powdered food, Hyponex is a real favorite and is also very easy to use. Directions appear on every can. When preparing food for plants, mix only the amount to be used for one feeding.
